Established as a separate and distinct use of the tribunal inquiry, the Spanish Inquisition was set up by the Catholic monarchs, King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella by special authorization from the Holy See in 1476. Its purpose was primarily to (a) protect the Conversos, the Jewish Converts from relapsed of their fellowmen and from relapse (b) to seek out the lapsed Jewish converts, the MARANOS; (c) apparently relax of the MORISCOS, the Moorish converts, and to keep them from forming harmful alliances with various heretical groups. Thus it became a semi-political machine protest was made to Rome because of cruel and illegal practices. Pope Sixtus V issued a brief threatening penalties for abuses of canonical procedures
